

CNN hearts Lake|Flato

Posted on 12/20/2011 by Jennifer Hiller

Lake|Flato Architects designed the Livestrong Foundation in Austin. (Frank Ooms photography)

A CNN.com story has named one of Lake|Flato's projects as among the top green projects in the world – the Livestrong Foundation offices in Austin.

The project started with a really unattractive old paper warehouse with lots of razor wire. And it ended with office space, meeting rooms and employee break areas that are flooded with natural light. You can see before and after photos here.

The East Austin project has gotten loads of accolades, including winning a Top Ten award from the AIA's Committee on the Environment.

Lake|Flato is having what could modestly be described as a good month. It also made the Architectural Digest AD100 list of top designers.

Congrats!

- Jennifer Hiller